

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a video display apparatus and method, video data of video being displayed on a display unit are sequentially updated and temporality stored in a storage unit. The video data stored in the storage unit is written into an external storage medium according to a first external operation, and is read from the external storage medium according to a second external operation. Video based on the video data read from the external storage medium is displayed on the display unit.

487389_1.DOC